The mania for duelling in France seems (says the Standard's Paris correspondents to have spread to the clergy. Thomas & Booket is specially honoured as a saint in the dioxese of Sens, which includes the celebrated Abbuy of Pontigny, and his chasuble is still kept as a relic in the Sens athedral. Some little time ago the Libre Parols accused the Archbishop of Sens and his Vicar General Monelgoor Ardin of de-overating this venerable relie by cutting off a piece of it and presenting it to a neighbouring shrine. One of M. Dramont's writers, M. Gaston Mery, attacked Monsigner Ardin in strong terms, and the latter, not being able on account of his cloth to exact satisfaction deputed his brother, Captain Ardin, to not as his champion. Gaston Mery is always as ready with his sword as with his pen; but his seconds raised a question whother Captain Ardin could espouse the quarrel of his brother the Abbe and fight in his place. The question has been referred to arbitration the ampires being Colonel Lannes de Montebello and M. Aurelien Scholl.

How great is the change that has come over encolpoy life since the days of Tom Brown may be judged from the experiences of the present Head Master at Harrow Dr. Welldon, who has been talking on the aubject to a contributor to Cassell's Saturday Journal, declares that there is far more humanity in boys nowadays than there was among former gonerations. Ous proof is that tighting has died out There has not been one organized fight sluce he went to Harrow. Boys don't fight because they don't want to fight. Another proof of humanity is found in the fact that the small boys are happy, so much so that they de-light in being at school. In fact, one of the most curious features of school life now is that boys are terribly afraid of having to loave. In the old days boys were continually running away. and at Eton, it is said, there was an old man regularly employed to bring them back. Sterenson and Haggard have supergoded Scott and Marryat as the boys' favourite authors, but as a matter of fact the rising generation care more for athletics than novel-reading,

Some interesting statistics are given in the Figure as to the sale of the works of modern French novelists. Emile Zola heads the list with an average of 95,000 copies, and Alphones Daudet runs him close with 80,000. Then comes a great gap. Octave Femillet's 50,000 making a bad third, Pierre Loti and Georges Ohnet are brocketed equal with 45,000 each. Ludovic Halery's agare is 40,000. Guy de Manpassant felling 5,000 below that total, and Paul Bourget dropping to 30,000. Edwoud de Concoutt is the last of the five figure men, his average being 25,000. There is a long interval between him and the group composed of Gyp, Anatole France Catulle alendes, M. roel Prevost, Audre Theurist and François Copper whose sales do not exceed 8,000 each. The last batch, little known to English readers, includes Réné Maizeroy, Oscar, Méténier, H. Rabusson, Edonard Rod, and Armand Silvestre, who are set down at 6,500. Zola and Ohnet kave both of them for exceeded their averages on special occasions for of "Nama". "La Débade:" and "La Maitre de Forges," 150,000 popies were absorbed by the hubic.
